January 12, 1798.

I HAVE been directed by the managers of the Lexington Lodge lottery, to order suits to be commenced against every person in arrears for the purchase of tickets, without discrimination; but think it proper to give this further notice, under the indefinite confidence, that many of those indebted will prevent the managers
from being forced to a measure so extremely disagreeable; and will relieve them from their present difficulties, by immediately paying to me, their respective balances due the lottery.
Application is frequently made
for prizes; but no money to discharge
them—suits have been commenced and judgments obtained against the managers. CASH is really wanted, and it is hoped this notice will be at tended to.—No further indulgence can be given. All those who have purchased tickets and are entitled to a credit on account of prizes, are re-

JAMES B. JANUARY.

FALMOUTH, March 15.
Arrived La Victorie, Chasse Maree, from Bourdeaux, for Bret, sent in by the Argo lugger. She is part of a fleet; and it is reported that Sir J. B. Warren's squadron have taken ten sail more of them, and destroyed the fleet that convoyed them.

LONDON, March 16.
By one Falmouth letter we have the satisfaction of learning, that the squadron under the command of Sir John B. Warren, have fallen in with a convoy bound from Bourdeaux to Bret, and, according to the report brought by one of the prizes, arrived at Falmouth, had taken several sail, and the frigate that convoyed them.

SWITZERLAND, February 23.
The canton of Berne has now consented to yield to the French demands relative to the establishment of a Democratic Constitution: so that a war with France appears no longer to be apprehended.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 30.
The effect of the great discontent which the speech of Adams, the American president, excited at Paris, have already burst forth even in the Council of Five Hundred, where Villiers declared: "When we see the president Adams holding the same language in congress, as Pitt in his English parliament, when we hear how both insult and defame the French nation, there can be no longer any doubt, but that there exists a perfect understanding between the two, and both governments; and without losing our time in vain expectations of disavowal of his sentiments by the Americans, every American ship may justly be considered as belonging to the English.

PARIS, January 16.
The speech of the president Adams of the 23d of November in the American congress, arrived via England occasioned surprise and excited great animosity here. Several passages of the speech are studiously marked with insult to the French nation and the revolution, and were certainly not calculated to adjust the existing differences between the two republics. More folly deserves to be pitied, madness and virulence require a more effectual remedy than mere compunction.

NEW-YORK, May 7.
On Saturday arrived here the schooner Valadore, capt. Gardner, 33 days from Gibraltar—the failed in company with the brig Commerce, of, and for this port, under an English convoy, with one regiment of troops, bound to Lisbon.

The Spanish fleet were still St. Vincenç.

May 3, lat. 38, long. 70, spoke the Afflante, and another so, the latter having lost her rudder head.—Had in company a French prize, and a few days before had sent in a Spanish prize, with considerable money.

The ship Hunter, of this port, is taken and carried into Algeciras.

There were no American vessels left at Gibraltar.

The Valledore, or Flyer, was formerly a Spanish gorda-coasta, and was some time in January taken by an English frigate. We are told she was purchased by a citizen of New-York, and sent out with a cargo of prize wine.

FAYETTEVILLE, April 28.
A fire broke out in Wilmington, on Saturday night the 21st inst. about 12 o'clock, nearly in the centre of the north-east square of the town, the whole of which, with many adjacent buildings, were consumed in the course of three hours.

A strong wind blowing from the south-west, together with the great exertions of the inhabitants, prevented the entire destruction of the whole town.—The court-house standing in the centre of the town, upon the preservation of which depended the safety of all the buildings, being on fire several times.—About 50 or 60 dwelling houses and stores were destroyed, besides kitchens, &c.—The loss in buildings, and together with merchandise, furniture, &c. is estimated at not less than $40,000 dollars.—The misfortune is attributed to accident.

PHILADELPHIA, May 8.

HIGHLY IMPORTANT.

W, X, Y, & Z.

Precious details extracted from Hamburg and Altona papers, of Jan. 15, and 16, which may serve to clear up the most incomprehensible parts of the mysterious negotiation between the three commissioners and W. X. Y. and Z.

"The circumstances which led to the unexampled conduct of the executive directory are given in the most respectable Paris papers as follows.

"A certain Wifcovich, a native of Dalmatia, who lived for some time at Paris in the style of a man of fortune, apparently in close connection with Caron de Beaumarchais, Montesquieu, the English Beckford, and other persons of the same stamp, and by means of an intimate address made acquaintances in several offices of government; and under cover of his ostensible familiarity with government men, introduced himself into the hotels of the non-accredited foreign ministers, in the character of a secret and influential agent of the directory, at the same time that he offered to one of the real agents of government to draw from the lately arrived foreign envoys, their views and their plan of conduct, in any negotiation to be opened with them. In this manner he obtained money from several foreign agents, and particularly considerable sums from M. d'Arango; by persuading him that some modifications in the treaty with Portugal had been effected thro' the influence of his friends, encouraged by repeated success he assured M. Arango, that one of the secretaries which the minister had complained of, as bearing very hard upon Portugal, should be expunged, provided he agreed to pay a million of piasters, to be divided among three members of the directory. To effect this, without the knowledge of the two other directors, Wifcovich proposed that the Portuguese government should refuse to ratify the treaty; it will then be sent back, said Wifcovich, one of our friends will propose the desired modification, and the two others will support him, provided the million is paid.—M. Arango gave accordingly information to his government, who readily agreed to the payment of a million. Citizen Mathieu, who in October last was sent to Lisbon, invested with special powers of the directory, and who since that time had frequently secret conferences with the Portuguese minister Pinto, was charged by the directory to see that the secret articles be immediately carried into effect. When he represented to the Portuguese government the fatal consequences of a refusal to ratify the treaty, and insisted on its execution, he was told that it was a matter agreed upon between confidential agents of the directory and M. Arango, and at last to remove all doubts, they shewed him the dispatches of the latter, citizen Mathieu noted down the most striking particulars, transmitted to them the directory by an extraordinary courier, and demanded instructions on the subject. Now the whole plot was at once unveiled. On the twenty-sixth December two guards were placed in the hotel of M. d'Arango. Wifcovich and two of his accomplices, who had assisted him in his schemes, under different fictitious characters, were arrested at the moment they were preparing to take flight with their booty. On the 30th December D'Arango, notwithstanding his indisposition was brought before the minister of general police, and after a long examination conducted as a state prisoner to the temple. Several persons implicated in this butchery were on the same day arrested. The noble Quirini, formerly ambassador of Venice met the same fate. Another band of swindlers had persuaded him that by paying a large sum of money, which they said was to go to one of the directors, the fate of Venice would be changed. It appears, there is a numerous gang of these swindlers in the capital, who endeavour by all means in their power to perplex the government and close its march; but the minister of police will soon trace them out. A very vigilant officer of the police has discovered a large sum of money deposited for the use of the British agents at Paris. M. d'Arango is considered as having forfeited the privileges allowed to the character of an ambassador by joining in attempt to corrupt the officers of the French government."

On the above we shall only remark, that the discovery of the swindling tricks of the pretended agents of the directory took place on the 25th December. Arango was arrested on the 26th, and the conferences of the American commissioners are all dated anteriorly to the epoch of the arrest of R. S. T. & U. the companions of W. X. Y. & Z.

The dispatches from our envoys at Paris communicated to congress on Friday, consist of a letter dated February 7, which enclosed a copy of a memorial a to the minister of foreign relations, delivered on the 31st of January. This memorial is lengthy, and contains a discussion of all the subjects of dispute between the French Government and that of the United States.

In the letter of the 7th February, our envoys say, "We have not yet received any answer to this communication, and should no notice be taken of it in a few days, we shall apply in a more direct manner for our passports."

May 10.

Our city yesterday bore a very disagreeing appearance. The passions of our citizens, which have been ardently inflamed by war speeches and addresses, as well as threats and denunciations against the Republicans, burst out in such a manner as to endanger the peace of the city.

It was early foretold, that the infamous recommendation of a British printer, to the youths of this city, to wear a cockade, would be attended with disagreeable consequences. The prediction has been in a degree verified; tumultuous meetings and riots took place towards dark, but they were fortunately not attended with any serious consequences.

The scenes of yesterday should be a warning, and teach our citizens to discard a badge, which can only tend to mark divisions among us, and increase the heat of party spirit.

Those men who have all to lose by a state of disturbance, are most solemnly called on in the awful name of their God, and as they value the good of their country and the blessings of peace and quiet, to reflect for a moment, and before it be too late, call a steadfast gaze on the tremendous precipice before them. Another step, & the yawning gulph may swallow up in inevitable ruin, the fabricators of this scheme, of arraying our citizens against each other, as well as those against whom the destruction is intended.

On Wednesday arrived at New-York, the ship Chesapeake, Adamson, in 44 days from Bristol, having parted company in a gale, ten days after he failed.

A Cork paper, by this ship, of the 21st March, confirm the capture by Sir J. B. Warren, of several French frigates, and sixty transports, from Dunkirk bound to Bret.

A letter from Cork of the 21st of March says, that an authentic account of the above had just been received there, by a vessel from Liverpool. Verbal accounts state, that on the 17th of March, (St. Patrick's day) a general massacre was to have taken place in Ireland; but a timely discovery, and the apprehension of a part of the chiefs, prevented the horrid deed.

Yesterday morning the young citizens of this city, to the number of eleven or twelve hundred, waited on the president of the United States, and presented their address. The hat of each citizen was decorated with our national cockade, and the American standard, with martial music, preceded the company. The concourse of persons anxious to view this interesting spectacle, was immense, and every heart seemed to glow with the patriotic feelings of true Americans. The president returned his answer to the address, and the company proceeded to the State house yard, where it was read by Mr. Charles hare, after which Hail "Columbia" was sung with enthusiastic ardor, and the company dispersed.

May 11.

Wednesday, several wagons from New-York, containing one hundred and thirty thousand crowns, arrived in this city under a military escort. The cash was deposited in the Bank of the United States, and is to be re-coined.

Lexington, May 30, 1798.

The public are cautioned against counterfeiting Post Notes, of the Bank of Baltimore—a person, who has been employed in the department of Cumberland, where he put a number of them counterfeits into circulation, and came from those into this state, last week. We have our information from a gentleman of reputeability, immediately from Nashville, who had in his possession one of the counterfeits.

About a fortnight since, two men who had stolen several boxes from the neighborhood of Louisville, were pursued as far as St. Vincent, and as they had passed that place, the pursuers employed two men more, to follow them, and to apprehend, make and bring them back. Ned Beard and Harkin were the persons employed at St. Vincent, who followed and took both thieves, and brought them back. On their return, one evening when they had encamped, slaughtered, one of the thieves, dispeled of his handcuffs, and while Beard was some distance from the fire, caught up one of the guns belonging to the pursuers, and shot Harkin dead on the spot.—Beard ran up on hearing the gun, and as he approached, Slaughter snapped the other gun at him, two or three times—Beard having a tomahawk in his hand, rushed up and tomahawked him. We have this information from two gentlemen who live in Louisville, where the other prisoner is in jail.

FROM THE REDACTEUR OF FEB. 23.

NEUTRAL POWERS.

The horrid genius of the cabinet of St. James's, is in motion: ingaged to see itself assailed by us with the very arms which it forged to ruin us, it has dispatched emissaries in every direction to mislead, if not to corrupt the governments who, by their wisdom have until now preferred themselves from the scourge of war. Already does it busy of arming a new coalition in the North against the law that declares English merchandise to be contraband.

Does England expect to make the world forget that it herself provoked that meaute: that it strikes solely at her, and that the law far from being prejudicial to the neutral powers, offers them invaluable advantages.

It is England, we repeat, that has provoked the measure. Firmly attached to her homicidal plan of famishing France, she swelled the list of contraband articles in such a manner that nothing that is useful was suffered to enter our ports. Not satisfied with publicly multiplying prohibitory acts, she gave private instructions to each of her cruisers, and their instructions declared every article of the produce of our colonies to be good prize. Therefore the law against English merchandizes was, on our part, but a just repulif, it merely inflicted upon her the punishment pronounced by the "Lex Tolosan."

It is also England alone that receives the blow, for the law prohibits merely the produce of her territory and manufactures a preference infinitely beneficial, in favor of the produce of other powers; since they are thereby invited to furnish us every article which the English are no longer suffered to supply us with, and that in consequence, their commerce taking possession of all the markets from which the English are shut out, will open to them new sources of wealth and prosperity.

Can it be possible, that they should so far disregard their own interest as to espouse those of the British government; could they forget, that by crushing that tyrant of the ocean that universal fortiller, we do not only defend our cause, but that of all the commercial nations. Let them remember what a celebrated writer said in speaking of the exclusive dominion of the seas? "This is a kind of monarchy, which Europe ought to wrest out of the hands of England, by referring to each marine state the liberty and the power which each of them has a right to, upon the watery element that borders its coasts. This is a system of public utility founded on natural equity; here justice is the expression of the general interests."

These principles are our own; let them also be those of all commercial states, and united in sentiment as well as by interests, let us compel England to a peace, to such a one as shall forever re-establish equality upon the high seas. The French Republic, despite nothing more ardent than to lay these rates and adopt a maritime Code, that shall blot out even the name of contraband, as every thing ought to be held sacred on board a neutral vessel.

tral vessel, wheresoever the may be bound.

But if a state under the mask of an insidious neutrality unites with England instead of acceding to our patriotic and philanthropic views, if it conceives itself personally attacked by the blow which the law against British produce and merchandizes strikes at England then it offers itself the proof, that it has made her cause its own, and its profession of faith is completed.

Let the neutrals declare themselves. The French republic prefers an open hostility to a clandestine war that is entirely to the advantage of the enemy of mankind. Woe at all events, to those governments who are the slaves of the corrupt cabinet of St. James's! They will attract upon their heads the execration of their own nations, whose blood it will appear, they sold at the price of English gold. Let them take care of the hour, when they shall awake from their lethargy—it will be the hour of punishment for their infamous traffic.

SACRED TO THE MUSES.

INVASION OF ENGLAND.

DEVOURING war shall wake his Gallie hand
At freedom's call, & scourge their guilty land,
And while his thundering chariot rolls along,
And scatters discord o'er the fatal throng;
Wield in the van, with anger, fire, and fear,
And doleful sounds, the war's roar.

Revenge, by justice guided, with his train,
Shall draw injunctions o'er the treacherous plain,
Then tyrant ver'ries, with despotic hosts,
Shall yield to freedom all the power they boast,
With furious pirates swarming round the coast,
Then peace o'er earth, shall hold here's sway,
And man no more his brother man will see,
But white ro'd Liberty from heaven descend,
And through the world her equal laws extend.

HEMP & HANES WANTED. THE subcriber being about to open a rope walk on the north bank of the Kentucky river, one mile above Frankfort, wishes to purchase about twenty tons of hemp, delivered at any of the inspections on said river, for which they will give twenty-five shillings, to be paid in cash in three months, (if not paid till six months expires, we will pay certainly then, with a reasonable advance for the time.) We also will to hire a number of boys or young men, black or white, to assist in the walk at Georgetown, and near Frankfort, to whom generous wages will be given, their board and washing found, while they may learn a valuable trade.

Georgetown, April 20, 1798.

N. B. Since the first insertion of the above advertisement, we have purchased a quantity of hemp from several inspections on the Kentucky river, & find ourselves under the disagreeable necessity of informing the public, that we cannot give the above price for such hemp as the inspectors generally pass, as it will not answer our purpose, without great expense and loss in cleaning: but still hold our selves bound to receive clean hemp, at the price and places above mentioned.
